Supporting the construction Industry in the Transition towards climate-friendly practices in the Alpine Region

Project SITAR will contribute to accelerate the transition of the construction industry towards climate-friendly practices in the Alpine Region. It will analyse the opportunities offered from modern technologies and advanced approaches for the design, construction, refurbishing and up-scaling of buildings from an environmental point of view. The project will evaluate the presence of barriers (legal, practical, economic, etc.) that prevent or slow down such a transition and will develop modern solutions to overcome them.
